'Student rights'- reality or rhetoric?

This is the first in a series of five articles concerned with the issue of "Student Rights." The series was researched and written by Stephen Hughes.

Much political dialogue among student politicians has always concerned itself with the term "student rights." The question is whether or not the term has any real meaning or if it is some empty euphemism which is used by student politicians to justify the existence of the student government.

To examine the issue of "student rights" we will need to go back about twelve years to probe into the roots of what some call a radical generation of "bums."

It was approximately at that time that students began to realize what sort of changes they could bring on, by themselves. Curricula were rearranged in order to meet the demands of many students, some of whom were demonstrating for institutional change in the country, or at least in their own school.

Ivy League schools began to give students more options when constructing class schedules. Other major schools across the country began to implement more individual curricula tailored to the need of the individual students.

Then came Vietnam. That very word sent shockwaves across college campuses during the late 60s and 70s.

Again, students at the college level learned that, if they caused enough ruckus, someone would at least listen to their gripes and questions.

May 4, 1970 changed the course of much of the "student rights" campaign. Kent, Ohio, was the scene of one of the greatest calamities in the history of the United States. What happened at Kent State that day changed the whole meaning of the term "student rights."

It was on that day, that four students were murdered while peacefully demonstrating against the war in Cambodia. Yes, that's right, the students were peacefully demonstrating.

To be sure, the students were much more physical and violent during the preceding weekend. They burned the ROTC buildings and unleashed an attack on the downtown area of Kent which amounted to five thousand dollars worth of damage to a few small businesses.

But the fact remains, and there is plenty of credible evidence to support this, that the students were legally permitted to hold a rally on the campus that day.

It was a Monday, and the president of Kent State University wanted his students to enjoy a normal day at school.

The Ohio National Guard made sure that the day was not to be normal at all. By his own word, the general of the Guard had given the students an "official" order to disperse any gathering of five or more people. Note here that the only legally enforceable proclamation was made by the Mayor of Kent the day before.

That proclamation stated that students were in the possession of the right to peacefully assemble on the school grounds.

The FBI was later to find that the general of the Ohio National Guard had wrongfully issued that order to disperse the already sensitive students.

When the general ordered his troops to load their M-1 rifles with live ammunition and proceed to disband the students, the trouble began.

Thirteen students were shot, four died within minutes of the volley of fire by the guard.

The closest student shot was 70 feet from the guardsmen. The farthest student shot was over 490 feet from any guardsmen.

Yet, the guardsmen made the allegation that students were attacking them at close range, with missiles and even loaded weapons. Guardsmen even claimed that a student demonstrator started all of the shooting by firing a gun from atop a school building.

The FBI produced an 8,000 page report of the incident at KSU and came to several surprising findings. In addition to the general's order to disperse being illegal, the FBI found that several of the guardsmen had fabricated stories about the attacking students the day after the shootings.

The report also showed that the students were peacefully demonstrating until the Guard took it upon themselves to enforce the "law by personal decree."

The shootings produced a backlash of reactions. Nothing was even done to properly prosecute the Guardsmen because the state of Ohio would never admit to doing anything wrong. "The queen can do no wrong," was the defense of the state.

Kent State University was the site for the most dramatic showing of what student rights were in the early part of the 1970s.

Student rights changed a great deal after the incident at KSU.

These changes will be discussed at length next week.

Concerts

Good news and bad for music fans here

For the concert fans and music aficionados of Eastern, there's good news and bad news.

First, the bad news.

The Atlanta Rhythm Section, The Charlie Daniels Band, The Doobie Brothers, Bob Seeger, Styx, The Marshall Tucker Band, Kenny Rogers, Jeff Beck, Billy Joel, Journey, Supertramp, Bad Company, Maynard Ferguson, Jimmy Buffet and Head East will not be performing here, at least not in the foreseeable future.

It's not because they haven't been asked.

During the holiday break, a contingent from Eastern, among them Student Activities Coordinator Kathy Kilgore and A.S. President Mike Leahy, spent a few days in Seattle meeting and talking with the major concert promoters there.

Leahy said the purpose of the meetings was twofold. First, he wanted to try to expunge the "black eye" Eastern may have received as a result of a concert held here fall quarter a year ago.

The Grateful Dead concert, characterized as a "fiasco," in an Easterner story at that time, was poorly attended and resulted in a loss of about $15,000 by the ASEWU.

The other intent of the trip to meet with Seattle promoters, Leahy said, was to inform them of the facilities available here and provide the opportunity for them to meet the person with whom they'll deal in arranging future concerts, namely, Kilgore.

Leahy said he believed one of the obstacles to making concert arrangements in the past had been the high rate of attrition among those at Eastern dealing with the promoters.

Leahy said he felt it was important for promoters to know who they will be dealing with here and know that they won't be talking to someone different every time they call.

In noting the fact that the earlier mentioned groups have said they would not perform here, Leahy enumerated some of the reasons why.

One of the primary factors, of course, is money. Promoters are not inclined to book concerts unless they're reasonably sure there's a profit to be made.

Eastern has two strikes against it in that regard. First, the University must compete with the larger concert facilities available in nearby Spokane.

Secondly, Leahy said he was told by the promoters that the majority of concert tickets are sold to people between the ages of 13 and 19, which means many of them don't have cars and may not be inclined to attend concerts here.

Leahy said promoters also told him only about one in three students on campus buy concert tickets. That means Eastern has a potential student draw of only about 1,200.

Another factor, according to the promoters, is that many performers consider Spokane area fans to be often relatively unresponsive. Often-times, groups perform in this area once and are not inclined to do so again because of a lack of enthusiasm.

Now for the good news.

Despite some of the discouraging things that were learned in Seattle, Leahy said there's more determination than ever to schedule concerts here featuring top-name acts.

As examples, Leahy cited the fact that Kilgore is pursuing the possibility of getting Robert Palmer to perform here during the Mayfest celebration this spring. Also mentioned was a possible performance here by Toto.

Leahy also expects the quality of entertainment for the PUB Noon series and A.S.-sponsored dances to improve substantially.

Another example of small acts that provide high quality entertainment is the Deli Coffeehouse series.

The A.S. also subsidizes tickets to Spokane concerts, by buying a block of tickets and selling them at a reduced rate to students.

Though there has been a lull in entertainment here, it appears that the picture may be getting brighter every day.

Easterner staffers 'exonerated'

Eastern's Disciplinary Committee Tuesday overturned the findings of Disciplinary Officer Al Ogdon concerning an incident last quarter involving two members of the Easterner staff.

The two, Eric Hammer, currently photo editor, and Jerry King, who served as sports editor part of last quarter, had been charged with violations of the EWU Conduct Code. (See the Jan. 17 issue of the Easterner.)

The charges arose as a result of an incident fall quarter in which Hammer and King allegedly removed several items best described as logos, which were used in the production of the newspaper.

In a hearing in mid-November, Ogdon had found Hammer and King guilty as charged.

The two appealed those findings, which were subsequently overturned by the Disciplinary Committee.

The basis for the committee's decision could not be officially ascertained. Tuesday's hearing was a closed session.

When contacted by the Easterner yesterday, acting chairman Patricia Hahn said the committee had decided "no statement would be made concerning the hearing."

King told the Easterner yesterday that he had contacted Ogdon's officer earlier the same day and was read a short statement in which he and Hammer were "exonerated" from the charges brought against them.

He said no rationale for the decision was included in the statement.

A source close to the committee, however, said the decision was based, at least in part, on a failure on the part of Ogdon to show conclusively that any wrong-doing had been committed. The source said the committee vote on the matter was 6-3.

Olympic woes

The year is 1936. Berlin, Germany is the site for the summer Olympic games. Like most Olympic games, this one is full of much pomp and circumstance. Super-saturating the Olympic compound are signs of the Nazis. The swastika now becomes familiar to the entire world.

Six months after the Olympic games of 1936, Adolph Hitler made public his Final Plan. The elimination of an entire race of people was this man's plan.

Hitler had used the Olympics to show off his powerful regime. He had also played everyone to be a fool. And what fools he must have seen.

He had mixed athletes and politics together so beautifully, because nobody took notice that changes were happening to Germany at the time. The rest is tragic history.

President Carter tells us he is giving strong attention to thoughts about what the Soviets are genuinely interested in: world peace or world domination?

The sanctions on grain and other forms of trade will have a somewhat limited effect on the Russians. Boycotting the summer games in Moscow--or even having limited games--would have a lasting effect on the manner in which the Soviets view the world.

Of the last fifty years of Olympic competition, none have been totally without political undertones. Olympic games are not the political vacuum that they have alleged to be.

1916--games were not held (WW1)

1940--games were not held (WW2)

1944--Games were not held (WW2)

1956--Spain, Switzerland, and The Netherlands pull out of the Olympics because of the Soviet invasion of Hungary 1972--Eleven Israeli athletes murdered in cold blood by PLO terrorists.

1976--Twenty-eight African nations withdrew.

Reason: New Zealand's strong ties with South Africa.

Olympic games rise above politics. Nonsense.

We should teach the Russians a little lesson about aggression.

Sir Issac Newton told us about the lesson four-hundred years ago: for every action there is an opposite and equal reaction.

Opposite in this case would be to use peaceful means instead of aggressive military action to get a point across.

The equal reaction from a boycott would be disastrous for Soviet Union: 375 million dollars have been spent already by the USSR on the games. How the Russians will react to this pullout (if it happens) is anyone's guess.

The United States Olympic Committee should not decide this issue in haste. Pulling out of the games for America is a political ace in the hole, so to speak. We are in no hurry to use it now.

We don't need to be made a fool of again.

S.H.

Kassman's Kampus

by Kenn Kassman

I saw my old friend Foghorn, the campus expert, the other day.

"What's up, Foghorn?" I asked.

"Well, I just completed a study for the Highway Department," he answered. "It seems that on the bypass highway from Cheney to Four Lakes we've got an overabundance of 45'ers."

"45'ers?" I repeated.

"Yes," answered Foghorn, "It's a strange phenomenon where people insist on driving 45, no matter what the speed limit."

"I think I've met a few of them, now that you mention it," I said.

"You can recognize them by the six or seven cars that are behind them," said Foghorn. "Usually, all trying to pass at the same time."

"Yep," I said. "I've seen them."

"Now in studying the 45'ers we came up with a number of theories to explain their strange existence," he continued.

The first is that they're all planning majors working on a special project of counting all the yellow lines from Cheney to Four Lakes. It seems 45 is an optimum speed for this.

"The second is that the 45'ers are looking at the scenery. After following a few of them and looking at the scenery we decided to leave this one out of our final report.

"Theory three is that they work for Campus Safety. Their purpose is to slow you down so that when you get to campus there are no free parking spaces left and you get a three-dollar ticket for parking in a school lot. Several people, we talked to seemed to agree this is the most logical theory."

"The fourth theory is that they are lifetime residents of Cheney who get their thrills seeing how fast they can reach 25 when the only stoplight in town turns green. They have governors on their cars set to 45 just to make sure they don't break the speed limit."

"The next theory is that they are working for the State Patrol, which waits until you speed up to 60 to pass then zaps you with radar and gives you a ticket for excessive speed. Which is like giving a ticket for spitting on the sidewalk during a rainstorm."

"And theory six is that there is something in the blood of these people genetically. We think they are from the same stock of people who refused to ride trains when they first came out for fear of their blood boiling."

"Interesting theories," I said. "What's the final solution?"

"Build another highway for the 45'ers," answered Foghorn. "Make the maximum speed limit on it 45. And since they like to drive so long, we'll build it by way of Pullman."

KEWC-FM interview features Mayor Bair

A newsman-turned-mayor will be the special guest of KEWC-FM disc jockey Mike Ellis next week on his Mike Ellis Morning Show.

Ellis said Tuesday Spokane mayor Ron Bair, formerly news director at KXLY-TV, will join him for a half-hour interview Jan. 31, at 8 a.m.

Ellis said topics he expects to cover with Bair during the interview include the growth of Spokane and how Cheney can fulfill its role as a community serving Spokane.

KEWC-FM can be heard at 89.9 on your FM dial.

Jester Hairston Choral Festival

More than 600 students from 22 high schools and colleges across the state will participate tomorrow and Saturday in a very special choral festival sponsored by the EWU Music Dept.

Though the event may be the largest of its kind ever scheduled in the Inland Empire, what makes the festival really special is the guest conductor, Jester Hairston.

Hairston is a national and international personality in music, theatre and movies. His career goes back to the 1930s when he first began appearing on Broadway.

A graduate of Tufts University in Boston, Hairston received his training in Afro-American Folk Music under the direction of the great choral conductor Hall Johnson.

By 1933, he was the conductor of the all-black choir.

For 20 years, Hairston was the choral arranger for Hollywood composer Dimitri Tiomkin.

As an actor, Hairston has performed in many films, including the Kingfish's brother-in-law, Leroy, in the Amos 'n' Andy television show.

More recently, he has appeared in films including "Lady Sings the Blues," and "The Last Tycoon."

Hairston and the participating choirs will rehearse on the EWU campus tomorrow and Saturday.

Their performance will begin at 8 p.m. in the Spokane Opera House. Admission is $3 for adults and $1 for students and senior citizens.

Hairston and members of the EWU Symphonic Choir will be the featured guests on KXLY-TV's "Noon Show," which will be aired at 12:30 p.m., Friday.

Symposium features 'Public Radio' pres.

Frank Mankiewicz, president of National Public Radio, will participate in a symposium titled "Politics, the Media and Public Radio" at Eastern Jan. 25 at 2 p.m. in the second floor lounge at the PUB.

Mankiewicz, who has headed the largest independent public radio network since 1977, has had an active career in Washington, D.C., politics and media for many years.

Originally a journalist and attorney, he has served in the Peace Corps and served as its Latin American director. He was press secretary for Sen. Robert Kennedy and directed George McGovern's presidential campaign.

As a syndicated columnist and television news commentator, he has been a regular contributor to the "Washington Post" and a variety of other newspapers and magazines. He has written books on Richard Nixon, Castro's Cuba and television broadcasting.

As president of National Public Radio, he has been concerned with the future of public radio in an era he believes has seen the decline of commercial radio.

Mankiewicz will also inaugurate Spokane's first full-service public radio station, KPBX-FM, while he is in Spokane.

Other members of the symposium will be Rey Barnes, chairman of the EWU radio-television department; Marvin Granger, KPBX station manager; and William Kidd, chairman of the EWU history department.

The event is free and open to the public and is being sponsored by the EWU Artist and Lecture Committee.

Monday kicks off 'A.S.P.A. Week'

Spokane's inter-collegiate chapter of the American Society for Personnel Administration, (ASPA) has declared Jan. 28 through Feb. 1 as ASPA Week.

As part of the week's activities, a speaker from the parent chapter will be on EWU's campus Monday, Jan. 28 to discuss the programs offered to ASPA student members.

An information table will be set up in Kingston Hall and short films will be shown there at various times throughout the week.

A general meeting on Time Management will be held Thursday night in downtown Spokane.

The location and time of the meeting as well as other details on ASPA week activities will be posted in Kingston Hall by Monday, Jan. 28.

For more information on inter-collegiate ASPA, contact Robert Swanson, EWU business professor and ASPA advisor.

Letters .....

Give 'em a break

To the Editor:

I am responding to the querulous and possibly callous article by Gene Ambacher, (titled "Mission Impossible"), which appeared in the January 17 issue of The Easterner.

Your article was rather vague and I'm not sure which department each specific complaint on your list matches up with, but I would like to say a few words in defense of the Financial Aid Office.

From my own experience and from the experiences expressed to me by others, I can honestly say that anyone of the people working in the F.A. office would be more than willing to help you at just about anytime. (Nora Watson and Georgia Dougherty have been especially helpful to me personally.)

Of course, there will be times when the office will be so busy no one will be able to attend to your needs immediately. You may even have to come back the following day.

Of course, there will be forms to fill out. Since when have people received something for nothing?

So why don't you give them a break, Gene? I think they deserve one. After all, their job really isn't so easy.

And yes, someone in the F.A. Office may even take a coffee break now and then.

Sincerely,
Denise Couture

'WINTERDANCE' begins performance tonight

Opening tonight is Winterdance, presented by Eastern Washington University Dance Theatre.

It is scheduled for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. from January 24 through February 9 at Eastern's University Theatre.

The dance suites will include ballet, modern, and jazz dance. The twenty dancers who perform in Winterdance are from throughout the United States.

For reservations call 359-2825. Admission is $3. EWU students are admitted free.

Adrienne Lambert and Rob Cook pose during rehearsal for WINTERDANCE, which will be performed today, Friday, and Saturday at the University Theatre.

Photography exhibition scheduled

Eastern Washington University's Photography Gallery will host the works of Alma Davenport from Jan. 28-Feb. 22.

Ms. Davenport, currently an Artist-in-Residence at Rhode Island, has displayed her works all over the East coast and Europe. Among her one-person shows include exhibits at Foto in New York, the Rhode Island School of Design, the Canon Gallery in Amsterdam, the Polaroid Gallery in Cambridge, Fotografia Italiana Galleria in Milan and the Portogallo Gallery in New York.

Davenport has also been in numerous showings in Paris, Brussels, Munich, and around the U.S.

graphic illustrations for Psychology Today and New York Magazine; and in Fotografia Italiana.

Davenport has also been an instructor at the Rhode Island School of Design, Brown University, and Rhode Island Jr. College which included work in the Rhode Island Prison System.

Davenport is represented by the O.K. Harris Gallery in New York and the Neikrug Gallery. Eastern's Photography Gallery is open Mon.-Fri. from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sun. from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

'Gong Show' happens Fri.

The "ASEWU First and Last Annual Gong Show" is scheduled for tomorrow night at 8 p.m.

The event will be held in the PUB multi-purpose room, where a panel of three judges will "gong" as appropriate.

All those participating as contestants in the show should be in the PUB at 7:15 p.m.

At that time, Charles Bush will assign the order in which contestants will appear and give final instructions.

Yell leader tryouts slated

Have you ever had the inclination to be a real, bona fide college yell leader? If so, then there is some good news for you.

The 1980-81 EWU Yell staff will be holding their first practice session on Feb. 19 in the wrestling room on the phase buildings at 6 p.m.

General information will be discussed at this meeting and a short practice will be held following the meeting.

So get starting on those jumps, yells and motivation drills, because the time will come soon for you to show your stuff.

Folk artist to perform

A performer whose musical abilities include playing the guitar, fiddle, banjo and harmonica will provide the entertainment at the next PUB Deli Coffeehouse.

Pop Wagner, noted folk music artist, will be the featured entertainer at the Deli a week from today, Jan. 31.

Wagner's performance there will begin at 7 p.m. He'll give a brief preview of his talents at the PUB Nooner earlier the same day.

Admission is free.

Heimdl displays works

Work on Paper, a one-man show by Georg Heimdl, will be on display in the Eastern Washington University Gallery of Arts through Jan. 25.

Heimdl has had numerous one-man shows throughout the Pacific Northwest and is affiliated with the Hank Baum Gallery in San Francisco.

Heimdl received his B.A. from San Francisco State, his M.A. from the University of California Davis, his M.F.A. from Washington State University. He has been a teacher at Spokane Falls Community College since 1969.

Eastern's Gallery is open Mon.-Fri., from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. and Sun. from 1 p.m.-4 p.m. Admission is free.

Non-sexist workshop

A short workshop in "Writing Non-Sexist Children's Literature" will be held today at the campus Women's Center.

Ruth Currah will teach the workshop, which will begin at 1 p.m. The event is free and open to the public.

Trivial trivia quiz

By Mitch Mentor

Trivia. Nearly everyone enjoys rattling off those little bits of information that seem to linger within every sport. Who hit the most with the least or what team went where with the smallest?

Sound familiar? Sometimes, at least from where I sit, it seems all too familiar. There's always that one person in the crowd that enjoys "trivia-ing" you to death with the most bizarre and worthless set of supposed facts that you can imagine.

I mean really, who cares how many hits left-handed hitters got off one-armed right-handed pitchers?

I don't. Give me simple trivia like who won the last Super Bowl (Pittsburg) any day.

To that end, I have composed the following trivia quiz that nearly anyone who knows just a little about sports can answer.

1. Which of the following people do not coach track at Eastern?

- a. Johnny Carson
- b. Jerry Martin
- c. Walt Disney
- d. Speedy Gonzales

2. In which city do the Seattle Seahawks play their home games (in the Kingdome)?

- a. New York
- b. Arkadelphia
- c. Seattle
- d. Washington, D.C.

3. Which of the following men has never been considered a top heavyweight contender?

- a. Leon Spinks
- b. Ron Raver
- c. Muhammad Ali
- d. George Foreman

4. Some foods are considered more healthful for athletes than others. Which of the following would you least expect to find on the training table of the Dallas Cowboys?

- a. boat drinks
- b. steak
- c. eggs
- d. whole wheat bread

5. The U.S. Olympic ice skating team was picked in a national meet last weekend. What type of surface was used for the event?

- a. grass
- b. tartan
- c. ice
- d. astro-turf

6. Which of the following individuals does not play basketball at Eastern?

- a. Vic White
- b. Tony Revak
- c. Gary Coleman
- d. Tony Barnett

7. Budweiser-sponsored rocket car recently broke the speed of sound on land. Which type of propulsion was most likely used?

- a. squirrels
- b. VW engine
- c. rubber bands
- d. rocket engines

Fredickson addresses A.S. Legislature

University President H. George Frederickson was the special guest at Monday's A.S. Legislature meeting, which lasted two-and-a-half hours, as Frederickson fielded questions from legislature members and from about 25 other students at the meeting.

Among issues addressed by Frederickson was the status of Sutton Hall, which is operated by the Veterans Housing Association. The vets currently lease Sutton from the University to provide low-cost housing.

Plans by the University call for termination of that lease in June, so that the facility can be used for office space for Martin Hall personnel while that building is being remodeled.

Frederickson noted that there have been several problems with regard to use of Sutton by the veterans. Among them, non-students living there, residents who do not purchase meal tickets and a lack of proper management.

Sutton Hall Director George Thomas will address the next legislature meeting to present his views on the situation.

In other legislature business, Curt Jantz was re-elected as Speaker and Ron Keene was elected Speaker Pro-Tem, replacing Jack Smith.

It was also noted at the meeting that two legislative positions are now open. Those are position two and 12, the former occupied by Sue Selle, who did not return to school for winter quarter, and the latter occupied by Jack Smith.

Elections for these positions will be held in the next two to three weeks.

O.E.R. acquires new cross-country skis

The weatherman isn't being too helpful, but Eastern's Outdoor Equipment Rental is doing all it can to make the winter season enjoyable.

O.E.R.'s Kay Stevens said Tuesday that 28 new pairs of cross-country skis have recently been acquired there. She said that there had previously been only four or five pair available.

The skis can be rented as part of a "Ski Package," which includes skis, poles and boots.

The rental cost is $4.50 per day, $7.50 for a weekend and $18 per week.

Also available for fun in the snow are a good supply of sledding innertubes and one toboggan.

O.E.R. is located in Phase II of the P.E. complex, near the glass racquetball courts.

Rental equipment is available to all University students, faculty and staff.

Young Republicans schedule meeting

The EWU Chapter of the Young Republicans has scheduled a meeting Jan. 30 to talk politics and provide the opportunity for prospective members to join the chapter.

Elections will also be held at the meeting. The positions of chapter vice-pres. and publicity chairman will be decided.

The group plans to invite state legislative and gubernatorial candidates to subsequent meetings.

The Jan. 30 meeting will be held in room 121 of the PUB at 8 p.m. Those wishing more information about the group should contact Dr. Mills in the Business Management Dept.

Business profs lead seminar

Advertising and sales effectiveness are the topics to be tackled at a seminar presented by Eastern Washington University tomorrow.

The seminar is one of six in the management development series seminars, designed to provide professionals with a continuing source of current information to meet their changes and challenges in business.

Advertising objectives, target markets and motivation and goal setting in sales, are some of the areas to be discussed at the day-long seminar at Holiday Inn in Spokane.

Professors Bill D. Sylman and William R. Wynd from EWU's School of Business will lead the seminar.

The next seminar in the series is "Effective Management in a Small Business," to be presented on Jan. 28 and 30 at the Deer Park High School.

Registration information is available from the EWU Bureau of Business at 838-5271.

Health careers workshop scheduled for weekend

The EWU Student Nurses Assn. and the Washington Assn. of Nursing Students will sponsor a career development workshop on campus this weekend.

The event will be of interest to anyone considering a career in the field of health.

The workshop will be held in Martin Hall Auditorium Jan. 26 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The morning session will focus on goal-setting and features an address by Dean Laura Dustin, of the Intercollegiate Center for Nursing Education.

In the afternoon, professionals from a variety of health-related careers will preside over an informal discussion of their respective jobs and educational backgrounds and answer questions from those attending.

Interested students may register for the workshop at Patterson 1038. There is a registration fee of $5.

Cheney School Dist. seeks volunteers

Cheney School District is seeking volunteer tutors for its remedial reading program, HOSTS (Help One Student To Succeed).

Volunteers are needed at Salnave and Sunset elementary schools and participants will be working with children in grades two through six.

HOSTS is a one-to-one program in which volunteers spend a half-hour to an hour per week working with a particular child at the school.

The only qualification for those wishing to participate as tutors is the ability to read.

All necessary tutoring materials are provided by the school.

Anyone interested in the program should contact Susan Tewksbury at 235-6292 at Salnave, or Vicki Frazier at 235-3647 at Sunset.

Maria Loos

Maria is a 6-2 sophomore from Royal City, Washington.

She was the Outstanding Athlete in high school where she lettered three times in basketball, and four times in track in the distance races. She also lettered once in cross country and volleyball.

In her senior year, Maria was the Most Valuable Player on the basketball team as well as track.

Third in scoring as a freshman starter Maria led the Eagles in rebounding, and had 56 blocked shots.

Vic White

Vic is a 6-4 1/2, 187-pound senior from Colorado Springs, Colorado. In his high school career Vic lettered three years in basketball and track. He was an All-Conference, and All-State selection.

In college, he has earned three varsity letters in track, and two in basketball.

He left the basketball team last season to concentrate his energies on track, capturing two indoor, and one outdoor NAIA National high jump titles; also was the NAIA 1978 National triple high jump champion.

by Mike Westby

How close is Eastern to competing in the Big Sky conference? Well we've received no no's as of yet, says President Frederickson.

In fact, the President went on to say, "they (the Big Sky) are very interested in Eastern."

From all indications it appears to be a matter of when we will be ready. Ready for what? Ready to be a competitive force in the league.

Opinions on exactly when that will be are many and varied. The coaches want to make very sure that they are not in over their heads.

But, in view of Eastern's fantastic performances against Big Sky schools this past season, this hardly seems to be a worry, and yet it is.

One or two victories does not necessarily make us ready for the Big Sky. One thing is certain, attendance would have to increase significantly. The average attendance at a Big Sky football game is over twelve thousand.

The increase in gate receipts alone would benefit our whole athletic program considerably. What all this means to you and me is that a better football or basketball game is definitely on the horizon.

Hats off to ladies

President Frederickson, speaking at a recent Athletic Board policy meeting, praised the women's basketball program here at Eastern.

He said that he is very pleased with the excellence of this year's team.

"They are competing at a level which reflects positively on the university."

The president concluded his comments on the subject by giving a "big well done" to the ladies.

Coach Krause looks for 200th win

"Whitworth is a traditional rival and usually results in intense competition regardless of each team's records," EWU Coach Jerry Krause said. "Alaska-Fairbanks will give us the high calibre of competition we've experienced in our district play all year."

Eastern was ranked sixth in the NAIA free throw percentage last week with a 77.6 percentage. This week should bring the Eagles to the top three as they raised their percentage to 79.1 with 14-14 from the line in the two weekend games.

Leading scorer for the Eagles is senior forward Vic White with a 14.1 ppg average. Senior Tony Barnett leads the rebounding statistics with 98 in 16 games for a 6.1 rpg average. Another senior, guard George Abrams, is the assists leader with a 5.1 assist per game average.

Coach Jerry Krause is still looking for his 199th and 200th Eastern victories this week. His EWU record is now 198-138 in his 13th season at the Cheney school.

Senior guard Terry Reed will be examined this week to see if the suspected fractured left wrist is healed.

Also expected to join the Eagles in practice this week is senior transfer Lonnie Williams, a forward from New York. The 6-7 Williams was not eligible to play until Jan. 7 because of transferring and is also recovering from ankle surgery this fall.

Racquetballers victorious

The popular, fast growing sport of racquetball has finally been organized here at Eastern.

Coach Pat Whitehill has organized a men's and women's team which is in competition with clubs from the Spokane and Coeur d'Alene areas.

The women compete every Tuesday night at 7 p.m. while the men's team goes into action Thursday at 6 p.m.

Last quarter the teams did well, but this quarter looks even more promising. Last week the women defeated North Park Racquet Club three to one and the men defeated YMCA 10 to two.

Coach Whitehill is very enthusiastic about his new team and plans to organize a tournament at Eastern at the end of the quarter league play.

So, if you have been in the Phase and happen to see more people carrying racquets than you are used to, it's just those dedicated players matching their talents against their competitors.

Amnesty Intl. will speak in Cheney

A group representing the Spokane Chapter of Amnesty International will speak at Emmanuel Lutheran Church, Cheney, at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 27.

Amnesty International is concerned with prisoners of conscience, men, women and children throughout the world who have been arrested, detained or imprisoned by their governments for such reasons as distributing Year of the Child pamphlets at the airport.

Student leaders are often among the first victims.

Amnesty International works through non-violent means to either secure the release of the prisoners or have the prisoners treated fairly and decently.

Wrestlers do battle

The Eagles lost two dual matches this week but to tough NCAA teams and coach Stan Opp is still optimistic about his team's NAIA district and national chances.

"We have to watch out for injuries and keep competing with our young guys so they can get experience before the end of the regular season," Opp said.

Sophomore Dan Thew kept his heavyweight record undefeated at 10-0. He will meet good competition this week when North Idaho visits EWU on Wednesday and the Eagles travel to Portland State's tournament this weekend.

Thew undefeated in dual meets

Eastern Washington's Dan Thew "didn't know I could get beat as bad as I did" in his freshman year on the Eagle wrestling squad. What a difference a year makes.

Thew has become Eastern's top wrestler as a sophomore. His record is 25-4 overall and 10-0 in dual meet competition making him the only EWU wrestler with a perfect dual mark this season. In addition, the Eagle heavyweight won the North Idaho Takedown Tournament, placed second at the Grays Harbor Tournament, and finished third in both the Eastern Washington Open and the Boise State tourneys.

Thew graduated from Spokane's Rogers High School in 1978 after finishing third in the Washington State AAA Tournament. He admits he was overwhelmed by collegiate wrestling in his first year at Eastern, even though he recorded a 17-10 mark and qualified for the NAIA Nationals.

"College wrestling was a real letdown after high school because I really got stumped in some of my matches," Thew said. "But this calibre of wrestling teaches you a lot and I think it paid off this year."

He has also added some weight this year, putting 220 pounds on his 6-2 frame. A weight training program during the off-season has improved his strength considerably. But even with additional experience and physical improvements, Thew believes his ability to pin has played an important role in his success. He has 16 pins this year and feels he can reach 20 before the season ends.

"I have always been able to pin because I was taught how to use arm bars effectively in high school and have been able to refine it in college," said Thew. "I win most of my matches by pins and eighty to ninety percent of my pins are by arm bars. It sure makes it easier because it gets me out of a lot of wrestling."

Eagle Coach Stan Opp agreed.

"My philosophy is to go for the pin and Dan does it well. He was taught well in high school and has that drive that enables him to pin."

Still there is one other factor that Thew says is the most important in his wrestling--his belief in God.

"I am a Christian," said Thew. "God has definitely helped me in my mental attitude. He helps me prepare for matches and lets me know that it's not the end of the world if I lose. My belief in the Lord enhances my wrestling greatly."

Thew's winning ways have also brought out another quality so common in great athletes. In just his sophomore year at Eastern, he has emerged as the leader of the Eagle squad and taken on the responsibilities of his role.

"We have a young team this year," Opp said. "But even though Dan is just a sophomore, his winning record has put him in a position to lead, and Dan has taken on the job and proven he can be a leader."

Thew's main goal is to get to the NAIA national tournament at Fort Hayes, Kan. He hopes to put last year's performance behind him--he didn't win a match. There doesn't seem to be much chance of that happening again, however, especially since his opponents are wondering how they got beaten as bad as they did.

Eastern women rip Cougs, lose Loos

The Eastern Women split games in last week's action, claiming a sound victory over Washington State, 74-52, while falling to Portland State, 70-66.

The Eagle record now goes to 14-7 overall, with a 3-1 record in league play.

Powerhouses Oregon State and University of Oregon come to Cheney this week to put coach Bill Smithpeter's young club to the test.

Both Oregon, and O.S.U. are nationally ranked this year, and undoubtedly will provide the Eagles with their toughest competition of the 79-80 campaign.

Missing from the lineup will be the Eagle's leading scorer, sophomore center Maia Loos, who ripped the ligaments in her right leg and will be out for the remainder of the season.

She underwent surgery on Saturday and will require four to six months to totally recover.

Loos has a 12-7 ppg average and leads the team in rebounds.

Dancers enjoy the music of Night Shift at last week's dance sponsored by Dressler Hall. Rockin' to rock 'n' roll is a great way to ward off the winter chill this time of year, though by no means the only alternative available to erstwhile Eastern students.

Ft. Tawanka?

Some of the parking lots on campus have been in need of paving for several years, but paving costs money, and money is hard to come by in these days of spiraling inflation.

Of course, if cheaper and longer lasting materials could be found, costs could be greatly reduced. I believe I may have found a workable solution to this and other problems.

I propose that instead of spending money on asphalt paving, we should use cobblestones and mortar.

Of course, ordinary cobblestones would be even more expensive than asphalt and they would tend to fall apart even faster than asphalt, but if we use a new and stronger material that is virtually free, we would have a far superior product.

I propose we have Tawanka supply biscuits for the cobblestones and hot breakfast cereal for the mortar. Because of the biscuits' unique hardness and the ability to preshape them before baking, they are virtually indestructible and can be made to fit any shaped area.

The breakfast cereal is far superior to concrete and could even be used for making building foundations that would outlast the pyramids. In fact, such a mixture could become the ultimate armor plating for our U.S. tanks.

By serrating the biscuits and hollowing out the inside before baking, explosives, like Tawanka's chile, could be placed inside to make small, very deadly handgrenades.

If those grenades were soaked in Tawanka's coffee, it would be almost like dipping them in curari.

Of course, this might be in violation of the Geneva Convention, but we could always claim that they were food-stuffs being sent to starving refugees. After all, they do bear some resemblance to food.

Perhaps the military should be informed of this new secret weapon at once, so testing could begin. Of course, we would have to find a new place to eat. Tawanka would be declared a military installation and only military personnel could eat there.

Those wishing to meet columnist Ambacher might be advised that he can often be found in the vicinity of the "seconds" line at Tawanka.--Ed.
